YOU AND YOUR INSURANCE

(A public service column about property and casualty insurance)

by KENNETH S. RAFFOL

"Are men really better drivers than women?" a female reader—apparently tired of being kidded—asks.

No one knows for sure which sex is the better driving group. However, insurance actuaries do know that women are better automobile insurance risks than men.

This means that women are less likely to be involved in auto accidents than men. But there's a catch.

Part of the difference appears to be related to the time, place and circumstance of the driving. For instance, men do more driving than women at night when the death rate is nearly three times what it is during the day. Also, the male proportion of driving is higher in rural areas, where death rates are highest.

But despite your favorable position, don't get complacent ladies. The accident and death rate for women is increasing.

One reason, according to a mid-western traffic expert, is the advent of "spiked heels." In order to avoid scuffing the back of their shoes, he says, women move the seat up closer thus providing added leverage on the accelerator. The expert suggests women remove spiked-heel shoes while driving.

Spiked heels notwithstanding, many observers share the opinion that women are more careful and more considerate of others on the road, and therefore, are safer drivers as a class.

This column will be glad to answer questions you may have about property or casualty insurance. Send them to The Agawam Independent, marked to the attention of Kenneth S. Raffol.

Fresh, Smoked, Salted, Dried, Canned

As one reads the reports in the newspapers about conditions over the world, aside from wars, one is impressed with the evidence of scarcity, particularly of food. Then one begins to realize that the shortages are worst in countries where private initiative is stifled with bureaucratic controls and government ownership of land and the means of production which kill incentive. Nonproducing bureaucrats tell a man how much he can raise and for how much he can sell it, but they can't make him produce when incentive is killed.

Plentiful supplies of meat, a luxury to much of the world today, is an outstanding example of uncontrolled production in our country. The United States farmer takes his chances with the weather and the ups and downs of demand. He has good years and bad, but the consumer has an abundance of meat in a free market where supply and demand set the price. The farmer averages out with a reasonable return.

One wonders what a meat-hungry Russian or Chinese family would think if they could go into a United States supermarket and see the display of fresh and cured meats of every description which are the result of unfettered enterprise.

Not just the official aristocracy gets meat to eat. All citizens can pick from cheap to expensive cuts—fresh, smoked, salted, dried and canned products. They have access to the greatest meat supply in the world. This is the result of United States farmers and packers working in a free competitive market when the profit incentive encourages the most efficient production of the best possible product.

Stamp Bonus Licks Tardiness

Atlanta

Officials of an Atlanta manufacturing company were trying to solve the problem of tardy employees when they finally licked it—with trading stamps.

Now they give away about 100,000 stamps a week as bonuses—to the wives of workmen who put in a full 40 hours.

"It's cut our absentee rate about 8 percent," said B. W. Roberts, production manager of Southern Iron and Equipment Company, a maker of railroad cars.

"We think it's an incentive for a wife to see that her husband gets to work on time. I guess we're soliciting a little help at home."

Mr. Roberts said the stamps only amount to about $1.50 a week in extra pay, but the workmen are careful to pick them up on Fridays.

"Several Employees, when they failed to get their stamps, have come by the office," said Mr. Roberts, "They say, 'Let me have my stamps. I can't go home without them.'"

Exception Proves Rule

An oilman in Wyoming has confounded the experts. It seems that time was running out on his land lease, and no drilling rig was available to sink a prospective oil well, so he reached for his pick, shovel and a few sticks of dynamite and struck oil at a depth of 21 feet. His well is producing one to two parcels of oil a day. The experts had good reason to be astonished because the average U. S. well drilled in recent years is more than 4,000 feet deep, and only one hole in nine, in unproven areas, finds even a trace of oil or gas. More than two million holes have been drilled in this country in search of petroleum, but no other hand-dug oil well is known to exist.

Drilling for oil is one of the most costly and speculative of human endeavors. The fanciful tales that have been written and dramatized in movies of quick riches from black gushers have created a wholly false impression of the oil business. The oil producer faces risks greater than virtually any other undertaking. That is why there are special provisions in the tax laws to allow him what is called percentage depletion—a tax deduction that permits him to conserve some of his capital for another day's exploration and drilling.

The man who dug an oilwell with a shovel in Wyoming will very well likely become a legend, because this is not the way oil is found in a nation that consumes over 30 million barrels of oil a day.

of the fair sex who who shot for the club were Arlene Sidello, Bertha Sidello, Lil Provost, and Penny Maello.

The Jack and Jill Trophy was also taken by Agawam Bowmen members. Hal Theroux and his beautiful wife, Mary, teamed up to top the other couples in competition and returned home with the coveted award.

The two day tournatent was a success not only for the local club but for archers who participated in the competition under almost ideal weather conditions. The Championship Tournament winds up the MBBA competition for 1966. The hunting bows will now come out of moth balls and the hillsides of Vermont will be ringing with the cry and hue of the deer hunters seeking to bag the ghost of the woods.

A reminder that the Agawam Sportsmen Club will hold a testimonial dinner honoring Jess Natalie for the devoted job he did for the club the last 17 years as club manager. The date is Oct. 4th and there are a few tickets left at the club house. The meal promises to be out of this world, so do not wait 'til the last minute before seeking a ticket . . . You could wind up being disappointed. Chairman of the affair is Chuck Basile.

Let's Go
Fishin'
BY BOB BREWSTER
Outdoor Editor,
Mercury Outboards

TROPHY CARE

The fish that makes it to an honored spot in a sportsman's den is the object of both affection and pride, but also reflects a degree of loving care as well.

The trip between net and the taxidermist's mounting board is a hazardous one for trophy fish, warn the fishing experts at Mercury outboards. As a result, they add, a great many prizes end up in the garbage can because of improper handling. To reduce such possibilities, they offer this advice:

A fish that qualifies for the den usually earns this honor by the time he's brought close to the boat. At that point — before being hoisted — special care must commence.

Landing a trophy calls for pampering. Prevent overzealous use of the gaff which can cause irreparable gashes. Bass netted improperly can sustain serious fin damage when bashed against the hull.

Once in the boat, the fish must be coddled further. To prevent loss of scales it must not be allowed to thrash around or be dragged. Never permit it to be exposed to direct sunlight, even for a short photo session. Wrap it in moist cloth or newspaper immediately and keep it wet to prevent skin hardening and loss of color.

The next step is to freeze the fish for shipment to the taxidermist. Dry ice is the best medium, though crushed ice replaced at intervals will be satisfactory.

The other method of handling trophies is to skin them and ship the skin and fins preserved in salt. This procedure is best left up to a professional who can prove he has experience in the working ways of taxidermy. Otherwise, obtain the instruction sheets of a taxidermist to learn the intricacies of skinning and practice on a few fish beforehand.

The key to transforming a reluctant lunger into a handsome "braggin' piece" is to make this decision before the fishing trip, say the Mercury folks. Learn how first, then observe the rules.

NOTES FROM ALA

BOSTON—Massachusetts' compulsory auto insurance will become a major election issue if the Automobile Legal Association had its way.

The ALA today called upon all candidates for high state office and the legislature to give their views on the controversial auto liability insurance system.

"Massachusetts motorists have been plagued for 40 years by an insurance system which punishes safe drivers," A. W. Query, Jr., ALA's legislative counsel, said.

"During the past legislative session a number of bills were filed to correct the system, including bills by the Governor and the ALA to abolish compulsory insurance," Query said.

"The legislature, in its great wisdom, decided to keep the old system, which benefits the motoring public less than it does the auto insurance companies," he said.

The ALA official said that Massachusetts' voters should be "extremely interested in knowing how their elected officials have stood on the auto insurance question and what they feel should be done."

With three television cameras centered on him, the announcer smiled, took a deep draw on the sponsor's cigarette, blew out a ring of smoke and sighed blissfully: "Man, that's real coffee!"

At Your Service

DAVID C. GALLANO
Director of Veterans Services

Massachusetts veterans who have received GI loans for the purchase of homes were reminded today that they remain personally liable on their note and mortgage when they sell their homes if the new buyer merely continues the payments on the GI loan.

William F. Connors, manager of the Veterans Administration Office at Boston advised veterans that liability continues until the loan is paid in full or until veterans are personally released by the VA on the obligation.

"The VA has guaranteed and approved many home loans in the area under our jurisdiction," Connors said. "We have experienced cases where veterans have sold their properties and were led to believe they had no further responsibility for the mortgage debt."

He warned veterans who may be behind in their payments due on GI loans to be very careful before agreeing to offers by strangers to make up their back payments if the veterans will sign contracts.

Connors said that if such a proposition is made, veterans should ask the holder of their mortgages or the Loan Guaranty Division of the VA at Boston for advice on the validity of the offer.

He stressed that the veteran remains personally liable for the payment of his GI loan if it is not paid by someone else. Even though the buyer takes over the mortgage and agrees to make the payments, until the VA provides a written release from liability, the veteran is held responsible.

NEW FACTS ON GI BILL . . .

GI Bill assistance will not be authorized to servicemen or veterans for any educational, vocational, professional courses for which they are already qualified. The VA says such training is considered "repetitious."

No application for GI Bill aid will be approved or any certificate of eligibility issued to any beneficiary for a course in a field for which he is already qualified.

The VA also plans to screen service separation papers to see if beneficiaries have had any previous military education or work experience in the educational field for which they seek GI Bill aid.

For example, the VA will consider a veteran or serviceman already qualified for his particular educational objective if he has completed a previous course in the same occupational field.

It also plans to consider as qualified a beneficiary who has been employed as a workman in a trade for which he requests GI Bill assistance.

The VA also plans to bar from GI Bill training any serviceman who has already completed an apprenticeship or a course which is customarily accepted as qualifying a man for an education, vocational or professional objective.

A serviceman who has completed high school will not generally be permitted to take below college training unless the program leads to a vocational objective for which the GI Bill recipient is not now qualified. He may also draw GI Bill aid for any additional high school course required for college admission.

Permission is granted a serviceman or veteran who has already qualified for a vocational objective to take advanced training. For example, VA will permit a man who has already completed a course in bookkeeping to take a course in accounting.

The bill forbids any bartending, dancing or personality development courses. It will permit the taking of dancing if it is offered, as part of a college's physical education course.

No "a vocational or recreational" course unless veterans has bona fide use in his present business.

FORMS TO CERTIFY ELIGIBILITY FOR POST-SERVICE INSURANCE . . .

All servicemen will be required to take along with them into civilian life certification that they're eligible for post-service life insurance coverage. The form will be filled out by the serviceman's personnel officer at the time of separation for National Guard and Reserve personnel on active duty tours for 31 days or more the certification will be issued by the activity or organization to which the reservist is attached.

Under provisions of the Serviceman's Group Life Insurance, personnel being separated or released from active duty have 120 days from service departure to convert to an individual commercial policy without medical examination.

Soldiers must submit application and first premium to the company they select prior to expiration of the 120-day conversion period. Conversion can be for any type insurance except term, for disability or accidental death and dismemberment benefits.

The certification form is important because it shows the amount of SGLI the servicemen had in force at time of separation and the amount he can convert to with a commercial company upon separation.

Contact your local insurance agent or broker for conversion.

Q. My son will be drafted into service soon. How does he apply for the insurance now being offered to individuals on active duty?

A. Each individual entering the Armed Forces will be automatically covered by group insurance unless he states in writing that he does not wish it.

Q. I have a NSLI term policy, paying dividends each year. If I convert to Modified Life will I continue to receive dividends?

A. Yes, but you should understand that dividends at first, if any, will be very small.

Topsoil Safari

The tomato plants in Wendell Hoover's garden brought him considerable local fame.

Then the Highway Department bought his property, to make room for Interstate 10 construction.

Mr. Hoover, knowing the value of topsoil for his plants, reports he has removed the necessary topsoil from his old property to his new home—in 180 trips by car.

Questions and Answers

Q. How many days of post-hospital extended care in a skilled nursing home will be covered beginning next January?

A. Up to 100 days for each spell of illness. The cost of the first 20 days extended care is covered in full. For each day past 20, the patient pays $5 a day toward the bill. The posthospital skilled nursing home care will be covered only upon transfer from a hospital after a hospital stay of at least 3 days.

Q. Suppose while in an extended care facility, I developed a second illness in addition to the one I had when transferred from the hospital; would I be covered for the care I received in the extended care facility for the second illness? Or would I have to be admitted to the hospital and then transferred back?

A. You could stay in the extended care facility. Care you received there for the second condition would be covered but only up to the total number of days of care for which you were eligible.

Since you would not have been out of the hospital and extended care facility for the 60 days required to mark off the beginning of a new "spell of illness," the second condition would still fall within the first "spell of illness."

Q. Do I have to go direct from the hospital to the nursing home to qualify for payment of the extended care costs? Suppose I was discharged and went home, but shortly found that I needed more care than I could be given at home?

A. The costs of your care in the extended care facility would be covered if you were admitted within 14 days after leaving the hospital. And if you should leave the nursing home before you had used all of the days of care for which you are eligible, and later found that you had to return, the additional days up to the limit for that spell of illness would be covered, providing you returned within 14 days.

Q. What change has been made in the social security disability program by the Social Security Amendments of 1965?

A. Under the old law disability benefits could be paid only to people whose impairment was permanent—expected to last for a long and indefinite time or to result in death. Under the new law, benefits can be paid to a person whose impairment has lasted or is expected to last 12 calendar months.

If you're a careful driver, you need a careful insurance agent

What can a careful insurance agent do about your auto insurance this year? The answer is "Plenty!"

You see, he can take care to place a careful driver's insurance with American Motorists Insurance Company—a dividend-paying company. Currently (on policies terminating on January 1, 1967) dividends are 12½% on both non-compulsory liability insurance and on physical damage insurance.

This kind of saving is possible, because American Motorists tries to insure responsible drivers—the kind who seldom cause an accident. The resulting savings can therefore be passed along in the form of dividends. For full details about the money you can save, write or phone:

The next regular meeting of the Agawam Lions Club will be Wednesday, Oct. 5, at the Agawam Congregational Church Hall.

Now that the Eastern States Exposition is over, the Agawam Lions at their concession had another good year. Last year's gross total was reached at 2:30 on Saturday, so receipts for the rest of that day plus those on Sunday were the increase in business over last year. The Chicken Bar-B-Que has shown an increase each year for the past five. Approximately 10,500 pounds of chicken were served.

There will be a meeting of the Finance Committee next Monday evening at Bob Schilling's home to draw up the annual budget.

DEER HUNTING REGULATIONS CHANGED

Massachusetts deer hunters will still be able to shoot either buck or doe, statewide, but will be required to exhibit their deer at an official state checking station during both the archery and shotgun season. They will also be required to allow some portion of the deer to be readily seen while transporting it on their cars. Approximately 36 checking stations across the state are planned. Director Jim Shepard stated they will be located so that no sportsman should have to drive more than 20 minutes to reach one.

These changes in deer hunting regulations were adopted by the Massachusetts fisheries and game board following a public hearing at Westboro.

These changes eliminate the previous requirement that hunters report killing or wounding a deer in writing to the division of fisheries and game. Other proposals of the division, including zoning of the state and restricting the kill of antlerless deer by a special permit system were not adopted.

Deer hunting dates and other pertinent regulations remain unchanged.

The Sportsman's Corner

by Dr. Joe Linduska, Remington Wild Life Expert

FOWLING

Bird on the wing has always been a hunter's most difficult target. Among the earliest firearms were "fowling pieces" which used small pellets that were more apt than the single ball to get the bird. These primitive shotguns were cumbersome and very inaccurate.

In 1831 the new sport of trap shooting came to America from England. Designed to sharpen the hunter's eye, live bird targets were released from underneath men's top hats. Because of the easier handling shotguns, it became "fashionable" even for women to compete.

Upland game, waterfowl and clay targets are popular with modern scattergunners. Grouse, quail, doves or migrating ducks and geese are fair game to today's hunters. Many discerning shotgun enthusiasts opt for the light weight Remington Model 1100 automatic shotgun, one of the most accurate for "bagging the bird."

25,000 GIs In Thailand

Washington—Assistant Secretary of State William P. Bundy says about 25,000 American military men—most of them in the Air Force—are stationed in Thailand and "there is really no secret" about the American commitment to the Southeast Asian nation.

The basic strength of American forces in Thailand "is certainly a matter that has been widely reported and is understood, I think, in the Congress and has been fully discussed with the congressional leaders," Mr. Bundy said on NBC-TV's "Meet the Press."

The Pentagon has been refusing to release the troop strength.

Senate Foreign Relations Committee chairman J. W. Fulbright (D) of Arkansas says he wants to know if the United States is getting into "another Vietnam" in Thailand. He has promised to hold committee hearings to find out.

Sources say closed hearings are planned for about Sept. 19 and that the committee hopes to persuade the administration to agree to open hearings on the topic later.

September 9, 1776—The term "United States" becomes official; the Second Continental Congress rules "that in all Continental commissions and other instruments, where heretofore the words 'United Colonies' have been used, the style be altered for the future, to the 'United States.'"
